Dear Brace Berg,

I appreciate very much the kind things in your letter.

You hope that interest will reopen the Ray case. I wish I could encourage this hope. As a matter of law he has exhausted his possibilities.

All that can reopen the case now is new evidence. That eliminates ^{mi}Frame-Up because it was the basis of his unsuccessful effort to get a trial at the hearing.

The major media have it within their power - and it is their right - to ignore me or anyone else. They failed so they want all others to fail to tell the people the truth.

Specter did parlay his dishonesty on the Commission into his present career.

It is interesting that you suggest a biography or autobiography at this time because a dear friend has been encouraging me along a similar line. First of all, I don't have that kind of self-concept so I never made notes for such a purpose, never kept a ledger or diary. I'd have to remember. I could remember enough, that is not the real problem I think I face.

I'd soon be 77. This means that each thing I do means that there is something else I'll never do. My health has been impaired for 15 years and right now I'm quite limited in what I may do and what I am able to do. I had open-heart surgery before Xmas. I'm coming along well but I'm rather weak.

And the pre-existing blockages in the return circulation in the lower extremities, venous thrombosis, give me increasing trouble I can't stand still and I am limited in the use of stairs. Most of my records are in the basement and I can't search for them or refile them and the number of trips I could make on the stairs is few daily.

However, under my friend's prodding I'm now keeping memoranda and letters that can be used instead of contemporaneous notes. What I remember, etc.

But I do appreciate your interest and your thoughts and I thank you for them.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg
